

THE EARTH'S GRAVITY AND A COMPLETELY DIFFERENT KIND OF SPECIES

I just want to document here a relatively minor, but still strange incident I experienced this afternoon regarding this entity-voice that I hear. This would be the female sounding voice, the one that sounds like a young woman that I've been hearing since 2015. This is the voice that calls herself Crystal. Though, as I mentioned previously in other writings, she didn't always use this name. Crystal is a voice that I've been hearing throughout this entire entity intrusion situation. I first heard her voice on recording, back when I was experimenting with EVP recording for two months during the winter of 2015. I've often said, her voice sounds exactly the same now through this hijacked-clairaudience as I did when I first heard it on my EVP recordings back then. Crystal is the last remaining voice that I still hear on a day-to-day basis. At least that is the current situation. In 2015, after I began hearing some of the EVP voices outside of the recordings, Crystal was one of several voices that were tormenting me.... you could say. She's always been the main voice, yes that's accurate, but in the beginning there were more voices around. However, over time the number seemed to dwindle down. And then for quite a while I would just hear Crystal's voice on a day-to-day basis, but there were still these other voices that would show up on a fairly regular basis.

Crystal's voice is very well-known to me to say the least. This is a voice that I've been hearing since February 2015. This is a voice that is constantly chattering at me... and I am saying "at me" here very deliberately. It's not as if she's speaking to me really, at least a good part of the time, instead she's speaking at me ...she's using her voice ....her chattering.... as a form of intrusion. So yes, for a while she seemed to be the only one that was still here all of the time, but these other voices would pop in (so to speak) fairly often. Some of these other voices I can tell right away were different because they were male voices, where Crystal's voice is distinctly female. On some occasions I heard other female voices, but they just sounded different from Crystal, they didn't sound like the same voice. However, the situation has changed even further. It's the case these days that I'm hearing Crystal still on a day-to-day basis, but these occasions of hearing other voices has become even less frequent. Now it seems like I don't hear a different voice sometimes for several weeks or even a few months. It does still occasionally happen, but it's becoming less and less frequent. Yet, Crystal remains. So, I consider Crystal to be the last of these attaching entities that are still attached.

I use this term "attached" to mean that she's attached to my life. I don't necessarily mean it as a literal and direct physical attachment... where I am literally feeling her presence on my body or in my body or something like that, all the time. That is the case sometimes, such as with how I often describe at night when I'm trying to sleep.... I'll feel her presence latched onto me, just clinging to me. Yes, on these occasions it is very much a literal and direct attachment in a physical sense. But it's not like this all of the time. I use the term attachment to really mean that she's attached to my life, that she's intruding into my life still to an extreme degree. She does this by constantly trying to make me aware of her presence.... through her incessant chattering and then at times through the physical/bodily sensations that I feel.

So this afternoon while I was at work, almost at the end of the workday, I was in a part of the building that was rather noisy. It's actually outside, but still a part of the building where I work. It's an area where there's an overhang that's fenced in, but it's outside and it's very close to a busy road. There's also some machinery in this area. So this afternoon I was out in this part of the building, taking care of something and it was fairly noisy. There was the sound of the road... the passing cars, and there was also the sound of the machinery running. The machinery puts off a steady sound, a steady background sound. This is the kind of background sound that I've talked about quite extensively in my writings. This is the kind of sound that often seems to create a situation where I'm hearing the voices (or these days Crystal's voice) with greater volume. Her voice can sound stronger, more menacing sometimes when I'm around certain steady sounds. This has been the case since the spring of 2015 when the oppression first started. It was a lot worse back then than it is now. Back then it was a very nightmarish and surreal situation where so many everyday sounds that I never really paid close attention to, were now spewing out voices, or the voices seemed to be coming through these sounds. Again, these were typically steady sounds that didn't fluctuate very much. Certain examples of this are the sounds of certain machinery, fans ...air conditioners, also the sound of running water, the sound of a running shower, sometimes even the sound of the wind. There were many sounds that I was hearing voices coming in through back then, but that's just a few examples there. It was like the whole world sounded different to me at times. I'm glad to report that it's not as bad these days. I'm not hearing Crystal's voice coming in through as many background sounds as I once did and not as frequently either. However, this still does occur on a very regular basis. It's something that I will experience at least to some degree I would say, on most days, even if only in a minor way.

In one of my recent blog post, I talked about the different ways that I have heard these intruding voices.... how I have perceived them since all of this started. I mentioned how there has been three general ways that I've heard them. There are variations to this, but there's three main categories I guess you could say. One way is hearing them internally, like hearing a voice in my head. I mentioned that this is similar to hearing an external voice, or at least it has been for me, but it's different in that the location is now changed. The voices do not seem to be originating from the outside anymore, they seem to be originating within my head, the physical location being inside of my head. Then I described how there's another way that I have perceived them, and this is similar to the inner way, but different. This way is more of a kind of telepathic means of hearing them. In this way, it's more like I'm perceiving Crystal's voice...or Crystal communicating with me through inserting thoughts into my thought-stream or entangling her thoughts with my own. As I said, in a way it's similar to hearing a voice in your head, but it is different and it's different because one is tied into my thoughts, or the communication is coming at me through my thoughts ...my thought-stream.... the other is hearing a voice that seems to be in the physical location of being inside of my head. When I hear a voice in my head, it's not necessarily coming through my thought-stream or anything like that, it's just a voice, a foreign voice that's in that particular location.

Then there's hearing the voices externally. Hearing them externally includes hearing them as I just described...coming in through certain background sounds, though it's not entirely like this all of the time. Sometimes I'll be in a room that's completely quiet, there's no background sound at all, and I'll hear Crystal's voice speaking and it sounds like it's coming from across the room or down a hallway or sometimes right up to one of my ears... just a few inches away. The voice sounds like it's originating from the outside. Usually, if I hear her voice like this and I'm not around any sort of background sound, the voice will not sound as loud. Sometimes, if I'm in a completely quiet environment her voice sounds fairly whispery. Other times it sounds very faint, but there's a kind of high pitch sharpness to it... it makes it still very noticeable to me.

Getting back to the incident this afternoon. I was out in that part of the building and I was hearing Crystal's voice come in louder over the sound of the running machinery and perhaps being picked up a little by the sound of the nearby traffic. This is nothing out of the ordinary in itself. In fact, it usually occurs when I'm out in that part of the building ...when the machinery is running. It's not so much hearing her like this that was out of the ordinary, it's something that she said to me. And even this I wouldn't really say is out of the ordinary, it's just something that got me thinking. I'm not sure if I can repeat what she said word for word, but it was something like ..."there's an entirely different kind of species on this planet that's existing in the Earth's gravity". She may have said something after that... like "gravity field or such...I can't recall, but I definitely heard her say gravity. This is an example of one of Crystal's cryptic statements. She often speaks in riddles and says mysterious and cryptic things. I often mention in my writings that this is actually something that she does more often these days than she was doing in the past. While she's always been big on telling stories and speaking in riddles, in the past a lot of what she was saying was more directed at me and it often wasn't anything pleasant. Back in 2015 when the intrusions began, what I was hearing from her was more personal statements about me, whether it be criticisms or insults or some storyline where I was the focus. What she was saying was focusing more on me specifically. But within the past couple of years, I've noticed that she's shifted away from this and it's the case now where often I'll hear her making these statements, or telling me these stories... that don't really center on me at all. With this, she's talking about things that are much bigger in scope.

I also think it was the way that she said it this afternoon that made an impression on me and got me thinking about it. She just came out with this statement very clear, and in a very steady voice without missing a beat. When she said "a very different kind of species", that really hit me. Now, I often say in my writings that my first reaction to anything that I hear from Crystal is to take it with a grain of salt. I've been deceived and manipulated and have had the rug pulled out from under me (so to speak) so many times by these voices entities that my mind just now automatically views whatever I hear with suspicion. I'm not sure if I did this intentionally or if it just occurred as a kind of instinct, but as I often describe, it's been a kind of defense mechanism for me and I think it's been rather effective.

Back in the beginning (in 2015) I was deeply distressed by the fact that I was hearing these voices and hearing them so constantly and I was also distressed by what I was hearing from them...what I was hearing them say. So these two aspects of it were the cause of a lot of my troubles. I tried to ignore the voices, but I found this very difficult to do, especially when I tried to force it. Looking back now, I think this was difficult for me because for a while there, I was still deeply impacted by the content of what they were saying to me. However, over time and after being tricked and deceived so much... (and also after receiving some very good advice from some others that I've met who have also gone through the situation).... I began to develop the ability to not place any significance in anything that I heard from these voices. In essence, my first reaction was to take anything that I heard from them with a grain of salt. This didn't happen overnight, but it did happen gradually, and in my opinion... it helped me out a lot. In a sense it took a lot of the power away from these voices, power that they once held over me. I was still bothered by hearing them, but I was no longer as troubled by what I was hearing from them because I didn't regard it as anything of significance anymore. In the beginning, even when I suspected that the voices were lying to me, I would still think about what they were saying a lot, wondering if there could be some bit of truth to it. But later on, I stopped caring, it became obvious to me that it most likely was just another one of their lies, another one of their mind games.

So I didn't really know what to make of this statement from Crystal about gravity. It definitely got my attention. But part of this might have been the way that she said it. It seemed like a very focused statement and she said it in a very calm voice. It's true that she often described herself as being different from humanity, though not all the time. Most often she chooses different words to convey this. I often hear her use the term extraterrestrials...or astral beings is another very common one with her. More than this I would say... is talk of how she or "they" are "superior beings". I've been hearing talk from her about how superior they are for a few years now. There was a time back around 2017 where hearing about how superior they were was something like every other statement... or so it seemed. She constantly wanted to remind me of that and implant that notion into my mind essentially. But here she used the expression ... "a very different kind of species". Really it's referring to the same thing I suppose, but she just used different words and they caught my attention.

I have mentioned previously in my writings how sometimes I find it difficult to recall the things that Crystal says to me, what she says to me exactly, because I find it doesn't usually stay in my memory for very long. Sometimes I find this very strange. I've often used the example... on any given day I can say that during the previous night while I was in bed trying to fall asleep, Crystal was chattering away ...just ceaselessly chattering away. Yet if you asked me to describe what she was saying to me, probably more often than not, I wouldn't even be able to tell you...to recall it. It's strange, but at least these days I simply don't remember what I hear from her very much, it's not retained in my memory for long. It does surprise me a bit because there's so much chattering, it's constantly coming at me, But I also think this is probably a big factor in why I forget it so quickly.

Perhaps on some subconscious level, my mind developed another kind of defense mechanism against the intrusion of these voices where it's not necessarily automatically blocking out the voices but it's discarding the content very quickly. It's like a window left open in my mind (so to speak) and these voices are bombarding me with their chatter and whatever they're saying, and it goes in, but it goes right out the window. Yes, I don't think I did this intentionally, but I'm certainly not complaining about it. If I can't remember what I'm hearing from these voices by and large, then I assume it's diminishing its impact upon me in any negative way. The exception to this would be (I would say) when I hear Crystal saying something new, something different ...which she has never said before, or something that she has said before, but not very often. This incident that happened this afternoon contains two of these things. She used a different term to describe herself, or those like her, which was... "a very different kind of species". Now this is a simple enough expression in itself, she's not really telling me much with this, it's just that it's not a phrase that I recall her using before. So that grabbed my attention. And then when she made a reference to gravity, that grabbed my attention as well because this is something that I've heard from her before, though not very frequently.

Looking back, I have heard her mention the Earth's gravity before. In fact, I would say that I've heard her reference this quite a few times, though it's been spanned out over time. She hasn't talked about it on a regular basis. It's more something that I'll hear her mention, and then I might not hear mention of it again for several weeks or several months. But I have heard her talk about the Earth's gravity before in the context that it has some kind of significance in her presence here. I don't recall exactly what she was discussing every time I heard her mention gravity, ...or the "Earth's gravity", but I do recall that at least on a few of these occasions, I had the impression that she was implying that the Earth's gravity was causing her and others like her to be trapped on this planet, or very close to this planet.

This isn't the impression that I picked up this afternoon. This afternoon, the statement was worded like there's a completely different kind of species existing in the Earth's gravitational field, or something along those lines. She didn't reference being trapped in any way as a result of gravity. There have been a number of occasions in the past when I've heard Crystal refer to herself and others like her as "electrical lifeforms" ....or "electrical beings". So this talk of gravity and how she's referencing it here is not exactly a surprise to me, because this is the kind of cryptic statement that I've heard from her before. Yet since she has mentioned there being a significance to gravity (or the Earth's gravity) on a number of occasions in the past, this jogged my memory and grabbed my attention.

I've also heard Crystal talk about "something above the Earth" on a number of occasions. This is similar to her talking about gravity, it's a statement, a cryptic statement that she'll make every now and again. She won't bring it up often, but enough where it now is in my memory as being something that she has mentioned before. Yes, there has been many occasions spanning over the last few years where all of a sudden I'll hear her mention "something above the planet". Again, I don't recall the context of each and every statement from her, but she talks about this as if there's some kind of significance to "something above the Earth". Is this in any way connected to her referencing the Earth's gravity? I just don't know.

I'm not going to place too much significance in this comment that I heard today from her. I'm going to take it with a grain of salt because this is my defense mechanism and it has worked well for me. Though I will say that it's still the case that now and again she'll say something that gets me pondering there for a bit. She does like to speak in riddles. In the past I've mentioned how it seemed to me like these voices/entities have their own language of riddles in a sense. This is also an example of how the content of what I'm hearing from her has changed to a degree since the early days of my situation. Here she's talking about the Earth's gravity and was referring to herself as a different kind of species, so she's talking about something broader, something bigger. In the early days it was more often the case where I was the subject of what she was talking about. She would come up with some elaborate storylines, but they usually centered around me, and not in any kind of positive way. She'll still come up with these kinds of storylines, but I would say that I have observed her making these kind of cryptic statements that are talking about other things... broader things... even more. I don't know what her angle is with this other than perhaps that she's just trying to get me to think about things that she's saying. Maybe she's just trying to come up with some new material because she knows the old material just isn't as effective as it once was. Perhaps that's what it boils down to. So yes, I'm just going to take the statement with a grain of salt. I'm not saying that I'm certain that Crystal's always lying to me. Perhaps there is a connection to gravity in this whole situation, or perhaps gravity does in fact have some kind of significance here. But I can't tell when she's telling the truth or not, or if she's ever telling the truth. As long as I observe her continuing to switch her stories around on a regular basis, (which she still continues to do) then I think the best course of action on my end is to keep to what I've been doing, just essentially take it all with a grain of salt, don't place any significance in any of it, just let it all fly out that open window in my mind and fade away into obscurity.
